Diplomatic Correspondence and State Papers

RELATING TO THE REIGNS OF

CHARLES II, JAMES II, WILLIAM III, AND QUEEN ANNE,

CHIEFLY FROM THE SOUTHWELL COLLECTION.

Some account of Sir Robert Southwell, his son Edward, and of William Blathwayte will help to show the origin and importance of the following papers. Sir R. Southwell, the son of Robt. Southwell of Kinsale, in Ireland, was born in 1635. In 1650 he came to England, was educated at Oxford and entered Lincoln's Inn. He married a daughter of Sir Edward Dering. In 1664 Charles II made him Clerk of the Privy Council. Subsequently he was employed in several foreign negotiations, first as Envoy with powers to mediate a Peace between Spain and Portugal, in which he was successful. Again he was sent as Envoy Extraordinary to the same Court, and in 1672 in like character to the Governor of Flanders, and in 1680 to the Elector of Brandenburg. On the accession of William III he was made Principal Secretary of State for Ireland under the Duke of Ormonde, and accompanied the King in 1690 in his expedition for the Reduction of that kingdom. He held the office of Chief Secretary till his death in 1702. He served in three Parliaments and was five times chosen President of the Royal Society. His son Edward Southwell, who was born in 1671 and married firstly Lady Elizabeth Cromwell and secondly Anne Blathwayte, succeeded his father as Principal Secretary of State for Ireland, and continued in that office till the time of his death. He served under four sovereigns, William III, Anne, and George I and II. Among other appointments he held that of Clerk of the Council, Clerk of the Crown in Ireland, and Vice Admiral of Munster. His son Edward was member for Bristol during the reign of George II. This Edward's son was also member for Bristol and in 1776 was created Lord Clifford. The Blaythwayte papers became joined with the Southwell papers through the marriage of William Blathwayte's daughter with Edw. Southwell. Blathwayte was Secretary of State and Secretary for War to William III, and accompanied that monarch during his campaigns in Holland and Flanders, &c. He was also a Commissioner for Trade and Plantations and Clerk of the Privy Council under Charles II, William III, and Queen Anne to which last sovereign he was also Secretary for War. From the above sketch it may readily be understood that the following Papers are of great importance.

There is another manuscript of this work in existence, entirely autograph of Ralph Crane, the Elizabethan poet, and dedicated to Lord Baltimore. None of the hymns, however, are set to music as in this volume. The present MS. has a dedication, "To the Three thrice worthy and right vertuous Virgin Sisters Mris. Susanna, Judith, Hester Beckwith," signed T. S. A note in the autograph of EDWARD JONES, Bard to George III, says "Query whether the T. S. was Thomas Sternhold, about A.D. 1569, or Thomas Salmon; the former was groom of the Robes to Hen. VIII & Edw. VI."

Edwardi Regis et Confessoris—Prefacio Elredi Rievalensis abbatis in librum Lamentationis sue pro morte Regis David Scottorum et in librum genealogie Henrici ducis Normannie, a very fine manuscript of the twelfth century, beautifully written by an English scribe in a bold hand in double columns, on vellum, with large painted capitals and titles rubricated in the original thick oak boards folio. xii Cent.

 This magnificent historical manuscript has never apparently been collated, and was unknown to Hardy, and unmentioned in the Catalogue of Materials for English History issued by the Master of the Rolls. It formerly belonged to the Monastery of Austin Friars at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, as appears from the inscription on flyleaf, "Hic est liber frūm h'mita✠ ord' Stī Aug^ni de novo castro." The date of execution must have been between 1154 and 1197, as at the end of the life of St. Cuthbert is a short continuation, concluding with a List of the Bishops of Durham to the time of Hugo, then living. This Hugo was undoubtedly Hugh Pudsey, Earl of Northumberland, who became Bishop in 1153 or 1154, and died in 1197. The life of St. Cuthbert ends differently to any of the MSS. mentioned in the above-named catalogue. The Life of Edward the Confessor is by Aelred, Abbot of Rievaux, that of Columba, by Adamnan; but both appear to end differently to any known MS., while the lives of S. Oswald and Aidan are of excessive rarity. The volume was formerly in the library of Sir John Savile, Baron of the Exchequer temp. Jas. I, and of Sir Henry Savile, the historian.

to be in his autograph. On the flyleaf is written: "JOHANNES MURUS ME POSSIDET HUJUS COLLEGII OLIM SACRISTA." From another inscription "Liber Collegii beatæ Mariæ de Otery," he appears to have belonged to Otery, a fact which was unknown to Tanner. The work is illustrated by well drawn diagrams, and there are numerous annotations. Esop's Fables are in verse, with marginal commentary. MSS. of Geoffry Wynsafe's "Poetria" are uncommon, and the grammatical tracts are probably unknown. In the seventeenth century the volume belonged to Sir JOHN MAYNARD, the famous jurist.

 IN EVERY RESPECT THIS MANUSCRIPT, CONSISTING OF 273 PAGES, AND WRITTEN BY DIFFERENT SCRIBES IN THE FINEST SMALL CARLOVINGIAN CHARACTERS, DESERVES SPECIAL ATTENTION. Without alluding to the work of the celebrated ALCUIN, in a manuscript almost contemporary with the author, the appearance of the spurious EVANGELIUM NICODEMI (which is at the end of the volume), in a manuscript of the ninth century, is rather an extraordinary fact, for even modern copies of this forged Gospel or Romance are very scarce. Hænel only mentions two copies of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, and two more without any description, which shows that they were of even less importance. In the great Medicean Library of Florence there is not a single copy of this work, and we see from the printed "Catalogus Bibliothecæ Regiæ Parisiensis," that amongst the six manuscripts of Nicodemus which are in that wonderful collection, five belong to the fourteenth or fifteenth centuries, and one, the earliest, can hardly be older than the beginning of the twelfth century, as it occurs in a collection, in which is contained an historical account of some transactions which took place during the year 1095.

568 NORTH (REV. GEORGE) AUTOGRAPH CORRESPONDENCE WITH DR. DUCAREL, ON ANTIQUARIAN AND OTHER MATTERS, russia, gilt leaves 4to. 1743-54

These letters to the antiquary will be found particularly interesting, as they are throughout filled with curious particulars on the history and antiquities of the kingdom. In the first he gives an account of some deeds of the reigns of Henry VIII, Edward VI, and Queen Elizabeth, one of which refers to a mansion of the Duke of Northumberland, in Aldersgate, of the situation of which he has no knowledge, although born in the neighbourhood ; another also referring to the sacrilegious practice of selling all the silver and metal in churches, except the bells.

In another letter he also refers to Mr. West's catalogue of Saxon coins of which the Dr. was the author, also to a MS. in Bennet College Library, Cambridge, on weights and measures. A VERY CURIOUS DISQUISITION ON FONTS. Discovery of some Saxon buildings ; Edward the Confessor's chapel at Islip ; Pegge on coins ; Prince's Worthies of Devon ; roll of examination of witnesses in a dispute between the rector of Welwyn and the Prioress of Popwell, relative to tithes ; opinions on Dr. Ducarel's tour, and plans for its improvement ; also respecting the republication of Cædmon's Paraphrase, doubts as to its answering, after having been so lately done by Junius. Somner's Saxon dictionary, &c., &c., with many other very curious and valuable notices.

FASTI; TRISTIA; PONTUS; IBIS; NUX; PHILOMENA; ET LIBRI DE CUCULO, DE PULICE, DE MEDICAMINE FACIEI ET DE MEDICAMINE AURIUM, written by an Italian scribe upon VERY PURE VELLUM, and having the numerous initial letters most elegantly painted in gold and colours folio. SÆC. XV

This manuscript has apparently never been collated, as, though it exhibits a very correct text, there are many various readings totally unnoticed by former editors, for instance: Fasti I, 18, the manuscript reads "Ingenium vultu fitque caditque tuo," instead of the usual statque caditque; line 43, tantum for Janum; 45, Deorum for Dierum; 55, Ausonidas for Ausonias; 57, Nonæ for Nonarum; 63, fastum for faustum; 76, specilis ara focis for spica Cilissa focis, præerunt for præeunt, &c., &c. Similar important variæ lectiones will be found in the other Works, but we must content ourselves with pointing out those which occur in the Medicamine Faciei, compared with Valpy's edition:

	MANUSCRIPT.	EDITION.
Line 3	pandere	pendere
„ 4	Semina mordaces	Munera mordaces
„ 6	accepit	accipit
„ 9	Vellus medicatur aheno	Vellera medicantur aëno
„ 10	Forsitan antiqua tacita sub lege Sabinæ	Forsitan antiquæ Tatio sub rege Sabinæ
„ 17	nostræ	vestræ
„ 20	Conspicuas manus	Conspicuam manum
„ 21	repertos	paratos
„ 25	potiuntur	poliuntur

The lines de Medicamine aurium are not to be found in any edition of Ovid's works, but are mentioned by Fabricius amongst the apocryphal works of Virgil, and as they are not in Meyer's edition of the Anthologia of Burmann, in all probability they are unpublished. Very possibly they may be the same verses mentioned only in the Latin manuscript 6707 of the "Catalogus Bibliothecæ Regiæ Parisiensis" under the title of De Medicamine Surdi. All these curious little poems are extremely scarce in manuscript. In the Index of that great Catalogue only a single manuscript of the De Medicamine faciei is to be found (besides a fragment in No. 6707 not alluded to therein), three of the Ibis, and three also of the curious poem De Philomena, in which the author imitates the cries of various animals. As for the poem De Cuculo, it is neither mentioned in Fabricius nor in the Catalogue above named, and therefore it must be a great curiosity.
